A colorful illustration of a kite. The kite's body is square-shaped and divided into three horizontal sections: a light blue top section with black lines radiating from a yellow semi-circle (representing a sun), a middle section with blue horizontal stripes (representing water), and a white bottom section. Two long, yellow, wavy streamers hang from the bottom of the kite. A black string is attached to the right side of the kite and extends to a small, brown, rectangular wooden frame with a cross-hatch pattern, which represents a part of the kite's structure or a stand.
